

TWO COMMENCEMENTS

Over the River last Night open the Local Season.

BRIDGEPORT AND MARTIN'S FERRY

Schools Each Send Another Class out into the World—Interesting and Creditable Exercises at both Places. The Graduates and their Performances.

The twenty-second annual commencement of the Martin's Ferry high school last night filled the opera house to overflowing. Many persons were present from the neighboring towns and cities. The stage was beautifully decorated with plants, flowers and the class colors. It was occupied by the five graduates, superintendent, teachers and pupils, and presented a fine appearance.

Miss Blanche Gillespie presided at the piano. The graduating class consisted of Misses Cleod Anthony, Vein Clark, Gerlie Gow, Maggie Moore and Howard Montgomery. The class had no motto. The colors were white and gold. The girls were dressed in white and wore flowers. The class selected its own representatives, as a literary society would its officers, and the teachers had nothing to do with this. The graduates who represented the class of '92 were Howard Montgomery and Miss Gerlie Gow, and they did it very creditably and to the satisfaction of all present.

The programme occupied only two hours, while under the old plan commencements lasted much longer. The large audience enjoyed the exercises and pronounced the new plan a decided improvement upon the old.

The exercises were opened with an invocation by Rev. A. E. Brownlee, pastor of the U. P. church. This was followed by the "Song of Welcome" by the high school chorus, a good one of fifty voices, under the direction of Miss McDonald. The essay of Miss Gerlie Gow was a splendid one, pretty from a rhetorical standpoint, and was highly appreciated as evinced by the applause. The subject was, "The Roots of the Present Lie Deep in the Past." The civilization of to-day when compared to that of the ancients shows that we are largely borrowers. In literature we are not ahead of the Greeks of three thousand years ago. In sculpture we are far inferior to the school of Phidias. In architecture we are not ahead of our ancestors. Even our own form of government is not new, for Athens was more democratic than either the republics of the United States or Switzerland. Many, yes, nearly all, of our advantages are the results of the labors of our ancestors.

There was less gush in both essays than usual, and they were more like the productions of students going from an academy than a high school.

"Wogenlied" was well rendered by the chorus, in which Miss Carrie Crossley sang a solo very sweetly.

"INVISIBLE WORLDS"

the essay of Howard Montgomery, was an able and very interesting one, scientific and well written, and was well received. He said that man's nature compels him to go from the known to the unknown. He is constantly reaching for new facts. Yet he never attains the perfect. The telescope revolutionized the astronomical theories. The microscope brought "Invisible Worlds" to man's vision. It showed him the impurities of nature. It led to the discovery of the disease germs and opened up vast fields for future investigation. Just as the atmosphere teems with myriads of bacteria, so does man's moral nature swarm with those germs which lead him from the paths of rectitude.

The next on the programme was the singing of "The Dawn of Day" by the chorus, which was done very nicely.

The address by President W. H. Scott, LL. D., of the Ohio State University, was a very masterly one. He took for his subject "Action," and showed that young men and women in the future must do advanced work if they wish to become something. The address was highly interesting and instructive, was listened to with intense interest, and elicited much applause.

The address was followed by the presentation of diplomas, very neatly, by Superintendent J. E. Mannix.

Next came the singing of "Fairie Voices" by the chorus, which was followed by the benediction by Rev. A. E. Brownlee.

The commencement was a perfect success. The applause was enthusiastic. Each of the graduates received numerous presents and all sorts of nice things were said to them after the exercises were over.

THE BANQUET

of the high school alumni in Commercial hall after the commencement was a very enjoyable affair. Only members of the association and their wives and husbands and the speakers were present, in all numbering about seventy-five. Mr. Charles Morrison was toast-master, and responses were made by Dr. Scott, Supt. Mannix, J. W. Bowmcker, A. W. Hart, Miss Maggie Ralston and Mrs. M. F. Earp, and a poem was read by Jesse Jones.

THE BRIDGEPORT SCHOOLS

Have Their Eighteenth Annual Commencement—A Creditable Affair.

The Presbyterian church at Bridgeport was filled to its utmost capacity last evening to hear the exercises of the eighteenth annual commencement of the Bridgeport public schools under the efficient management of Prof. James Duncan. Bridgeport certainly has reason to feel proud of her schools. They are among the best in the county and have only attained their high degree of excellence by the careful application of brains and ability in the management. Meister's orchestra was present and rendered some very excellent music. The diplomas were presented by William Alexander in a graceful and neat manner. All the graduates, without exception, acquitted themselves in a highly creditable style. Following is the programme: Overture—The Bridal Rose.....Lavallo

AMERICAN NURSERYMEN.

The Seventeenth Annual Meeting to be held at Atlanta.

On June 1 the seventeenth annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen will be held at Atlanta, Ga., which is located high, near the mountains, and will be cool at that date, as many have anticipated.

The trip from Chattanooga to Atlanta is directly over the route that General Sherman fought over, including the battles of Dalton, Chickamauga, Rosacea, Rocky Face Ridge, Allatoona, Kenesaw Mt., Chattahoochee, and a number of lesser battles, and is every inch historic ground.

The hall of the house of representatives in the state capitol has been secured for the opening session. It is a beautiful hall, well adapted for the purpose. Harrison Hall, quiet and cool, will be occupied for other sessions. Every effort is being made to make this meeting one of the most enjoyable and profitable ever held. It is a new departure to go to the land of the magnolia and palm. Northern people will be glad to avail themselves of the low railroad fare to this beautiful region, which many northern people have never seen. Reduced rates by steamship from New York via Savannah have also been secured. The programme for the occasion will be interesting. Among the papers to be read will be one on "Advertising or Agents—Which?" by Mr. E. W. Reid, the well known Bridgeport, Ohio, nurseryman.

FATAL CLOUD-BURST.

At Least Six Lives Lost Near Niles, Ohio. Great Damage to Property.

NILES, O., May 26.—A cloud burst at Kinsman, a small village twelve miles northwest of this city, on the Pymatening river, and resulted in a flood which has caused the death of at least six persons and the destruction of a vast amount of property and stock. The first information of the catastrophe reached here by a messenger, who arrived at 7:30 o'clock last night. He stated that a waterspout or cloud burst over that section about 6 o'clock in the morning, and that the loss of life and damage to crops, drowning of stock and damage to buildings was awful. A number of physicians from this city are now at the scene.

The water fell in torrents from 4 o'clock till a few minutes after six. The small river overflowed its banks and poured its volume of water over a fertile and well tamed country.

A large dam about two miles above the village broke and a solid wall of water poured down the river's bed. No one was warned, as all thought themselves secure. It was upon them in an instant. The river was over a mile wide and covered the bottoms. J. B. Robbins' house, a small, one-story structure, was located on the bank of the river. He and his wife and their two children were eating breakfast. It is presumed they noticed the volume of water approaching and started to flee, but were drowned. K. Stewart and son were at their barn, which was some rods away from the house. It was carried away and both were drowned. The house withstood the torrent and the wife observed the destruction and death of J. D. Campbell and wife were carried down with the rush. They lodged on the abutments of the bridge and were rescued.

The bodies of the six known to have perished have been recovered. All were found in a large pile of driftwood which reached nearly across the river. The banks of the river are crowded with excited sight-seers and searching parties are overhauling the driftwood, believing that all of the dead have not been found.

No Truth in It.

CLEVELAND, O., May 26.—A special dispatch to the Leader from Youngstown, Ohio, says there is no truth in the reported cloud burst at Kinsman, O., in which six people are alleged to have been drowned. The Lake Shore railroad telegraph operator at that place says nothing of the kind occurred.

NOTES ON NAVIGATION.

Stage of Water and Movements of Boats. The River Interests.

Many persons are unable to sleep on their left side. The cause has long been a puzzle to physicians. Metropolitan papers speak with great interest of Dr. Franklin Miles, the eminent Indiana specialist in nervous and heart diseases, who has proven that this habit arises from a diseased heart. He has examined and kept on record thousands of cases. His New Heart Cure, a wonderful remedy, is sold at Logan Drug Co's. Thousands testify to its value as a cure for Heart Diseases. Mrs. Chas. Benoy, Loveland, Colo., says its effects on her were marvelous. Elegant Book on Heart Disease free.

I began taking it and soon began to feel better. I have now taken a little over two bottles and can truthfully say I feel well again and can eat anything without distressing me, even to
